

Government
of South Australia

When should I start feeding my baby solids?

Babies need solids from around 6 months.

It is important to try different family food types and textures, as they grow older.

To find out more, look in your Blue Book.

www.cyh.com/bluebook